Bill Which Will Prevent the Unjust Commitment of Children.

* The Evening World's " Crusade Ending in Victory.

Elbridge T. Gerry the Author of the Measure.

Everybody remembers the sturdy fight which THE EVENING WORLD made in the last Legislature for the bill which provided for a review by a superior tribunal PORTUGAL'S MINISTRY OUT of the cases of children committed by police magistrates to asyrums and other institutions.

That measure, designed as a safeguard against the injustice often done to parents and guardians by hasty commitments where all the facts and circumstances have not been brought out before the police magistrate, failed to become a law.

Despite defeat, however, THE EVENING World has not given up its struggle for the principle which it so persistently championed last year, and this week there will be introduced in the Legislature a bill that will provide a sure and adequate remedy, and which it may be predicted with almost absolute certainty will become a law within a very few weeks.

The new bill has been drawn up by no less able and learned a lawyer than President Elbridge T. Gerry, of the Children's Bociety, who was the principal opponent of last year's bill.

He has come around, however, during the interval, to THE EVENING WORLD'S way of thinking, and has admitted very frankly that an evil has existed in the past which demands a speedy and comlete remedy, and he has constructed a bill which will, as he has shown, fill every bill which will, as he has shown, fill every requirement of the case.

"The first case which The Evening World brought up a year ago," said Mr. Gerry to-day, in conversation with a reporter, "set me thinking, and when other cases of the same kind had been taken up and decided against us, I came to the conclusion that The Evening World was right in demanding an amendment of the present law.

right in demanding an amendment of the present law.

"Last Winter, when The Evenino Wonlo's bill was pending in the Legislature, I had been studying up the matter for some time, but had not fully worked out my idea as to what sort of a measure would best answer the purpose. That is the reason I did not introduce a measure of my own.

"I opposed The Evenino World bill consciontously, for I believed then and still am convinced that it was not what was needed. I will explain.

"In that bill the remedy proposed was by writs of habeas corpus and certiorari. Now, any bill which gives a judge the power to go behind a final judgment in a criminal case, as these commitments are to be regarded under the Penal Code, on a writ of habeas corpus, is a violation of the principles of the law as established in many decisions in the Court of Appeals.

"Besides being a cumbersome method, it would also be expensive, for a judge would have to send the matter to a referes to take testimony, and the parents or would have to send the matter to a referee to take testimony, and the parents or the institution having custody of the child would be be obliged to pay big fees, according to the decision of the referee.

'What the new bill proposes is strictly in accord with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure as they exist to-day, and the remedy I believe already exists in the law. The object of the proposed amendment is to make the law more specific, and to add other provisions which will be specially applicable to these cases of commitments when a review of a case on its merits is desired."

In other words, the remedy is by ap-

In other words, the remedy is by ap-peal. Section 749 of the Code of Crimi-nal Procedure provides that:

A judgment upon conviction rendered by a court of special sessions, police court, solice magistrate or Justice of the Peace in any criminal action or proceedings or special proceeding of a criminal nature, may be re-viewed by the Court of Sessions of the county upon an appeal as prescribed in this title, and not otherwise.

This, Mr. Gerry argues, already gives the right of appeal in children's cases, but he proposes to add after the words "special proceeding of a criminal nature," the words "including the commitment of children by police magistrates," so that there will be no mistake about it.

nature." the words "including the commitment of children by police magistrates." so that there will be no mistake about it.

This will at once place these cases on the same basis with any other criminal proceeding, and appeals may be taken to the General Bessions, and from there to the General Term of the Supreme Court. The addition of these few words are all that is needed practically, but other clauses in the bill, which is very brief, provide for a few additional safeguards.

These are to the effect that the Bouety or Institution having the custody of the child shall be served with a notice of appeal, and shall be heard in the final argument, and that pending the appeal the child shall not be removed from the institution of which it is an immate.

The advantages of bringing children's cases under this head of the law, as enumerated by Mr. Gerry, are as follows:

"In the first place there is no principle of the law violated, as in the case of a remedy by habeas corpus, and the remedy itself is perfectly logical, consistent and complete.

There is no expense to the parties, for the county pays all the expenses of such proceedings, and there is no delay because the statute already provides that such appeals shall not be limited to the parents of the child, but any one who had the logal enatedy of the child at the time of its commitment shall be authorized to apply for it.

The same time limit shall rule as at present the statue within the days of the commitment has been made without the knowledge of the lawful guardians of the commitment has been made without the knowledge of the lawful guardians of the child, and the time has elassed within which the appeal shall be inkent the laced on the remainment and commitment and speal shall be niken. The laced of the parents of the child, and the time has elassed within which the appeal shall be inkent the knowledge of the lawful guardians of the commitment to appeal.

Another provision is made for the lakendardents and complete provision is made for the lakendardents a or others to appeal.
Another provision is made for the taking of stenographic minutes by the nolice magistrate in all cases of commitment, so that the uncertainties of the oral testimony as now taken will be avoided and a full record kept of each case.

An amendment is also made to section 755, in regard to the manner of delivering the affidavit and allowance of appeal, as the Clerk of Special Sessions will have nothing to do with these matters.

The general disadvantages of the babeas corpus proceedings will thus be avoided and justice will be rendered with greater speed and certainty, while the merits of seach case will be fully reviewed by the higher tribunal.

The Appellate Court is given the widest discretion in all matters of appeal, so that

The Appellate Court is given the widest discretion in all matters of appeal, so that there is very little danger of a miscarriage of justice, and all parties can be heard.

In uniting with The Evening World in securing a remedy for the existing evil Mr. Gerry expressed his admiration of the energy with which the campaign had been conducted thus far by the champion of reform, and said that he was convinced that if the work was carried on in concert in the future there was not the slightest doubt that the bill would be passed by both branches of the Legislature and signed by the Governor without opposition.

The bill will be introduced to-day or to-morrow.

The Country Agitated and in Fear of Further Disturbance.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE EVENING WORLD.] LISBON, Jan. 13. - The Portuguese Mir istry has resigned.

Agitation continues, and the situation s critical. Further acts of violence like yesterday' attack by the mob of students and others on the British Legation are feared. The editorial expressions over Eng. land's bullying policy, as they style it, are very bitter, and the papers also complain of the lack of sympathy on the part of Lord Salisbury's ultimatum, demanding Portugal's full surrender in Africa, made lespite Bismarck's request for more pacific proceedings, is an unexpected thunderbolt, the force of which is felt more every moment. Aside from the popular indignation over the matter, the Government finds cause for worry and chagrin in the fact that, not too strongly intrenched in the peo-ple's favor before, it is now exposed to new dangers and possible contumely on account of the overbearing attitude of England and its own practical helpless-

Rumors of Heavy Insurance on Justice Matheson's Story of the Discovery of the Crime.

ISPECIAL TO THE EVERING WORLD. TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 13, -As early as 8 clock this morning a crowd began to asemble about the Court-House, in which boards are almost directly opposite. A rumor that Dr. Kniffin was implicated in the murder of his wife in order to obtain heavy insurance on her life had obtained great credence and created much talk.

An Evening World reporter, endeavoring to find out for how much her life was insured, if at all asked, by lawyers.

Coroner Bowers had heard the rumor.
He smiled knowingly when spoken to about it and said:
'' If there is anything in it we will make

It here is anything the interest to the proper time."

Public Prosecutor Stockton, ill and pale after his severe attack of the grip, walked into the court-room at a few minutes after 10, and declined to say whether he knew that the dead woman's life was insured or not.

Although scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock, undersized Coroner Bowers did not begin business until 10,30. Then he called the jury roll. They were all present. JUSTICE MATHESON'S STATEMENT. John Matheson, the gray-haired, gray-carded Police Justice, was the first wit ness, and instead of waiting for ques-tions to be put to him, said he would give a statement from his notes, which was as follows:

"About 8 o'clock on the morning of Jan. 3 word came to me that burglars had entered Dr. Kniffin's house.
"I went there and entered the large bedroom, with Chief of Police McChesney. The gas was burning. A closet door was open. A mass of clothes lay on the closet floor. On the bed was another lot of clothes, a pair of shoes stood at the end of the bed.
"The bureau drawers were open, and the contents missing, but the toilet articles on the bureau were not disturbed.

"Mrs.Kniffin lay on the bed dead. The face was caim and peaceful, the lips were swollen. There was no sign of a struggle about her person except that the fingers of her hands were slightly clinched.

"It was found that a door leading into an alcove room could be opened but about three inches, not enough to permit any one to enter.

OBSTRUCTED BY DR. SHANNON. "Chief McChesney asked Dr. Shannon to see Miss Purcell," said the witness, "but the doctor refused to permit us to do so, and let me say here that Dr. Shannon nas opposed us at every point, whereas Mr. Palmer has aided us in our investigation in every way.

Palmer has aided us in our investigation in every way.

"Upon our insisting, Dr. Shannon brought us to Miss Fureell. She was in bed. While questioning her I had to ask Dr. Shannon to leave the room, as he suggested answers to her, and I thought his presence had some restraining influence on her.

SOMETHING HELD BACK. "This is all the police have to give at present, as we do not want to give our case away at present. If we did so we might rum our case, and I think we have a good case against the suspect."

The antiquated Police Justice was laughed at while giving his testimony.

Foreman Sterling finally said to him:

"Justice Matheson, you have treated the Coroner's jury very improperly. Pon't you think you had better answer their quest one, or at least that you had better consult with the Public Prosecutor before you refuse to answer our questions?" THE JUSTICE WON.

A 'ter twenty minutes of wrangling the Justice got off without answering the questions, and the Coroner did not have the nerve to lock him up. He was then excured and Druggest Patterson was recalled.

Coucluding, Druggist Patterson said he had one conversation with Miss Furcell, and that the conversation turned on her being in love with Dr. Kniffin, and that during the conversation she remarked:

"If we (meaning Dr. Kniffin and herself) were in love we could have fled without removing poor Myra."

"Do you think Dr. Kniffin and Miss Purcell were in love?" asked Juryman Pierson.

'If they were they made love so quietly that I never noticed it. I never could make love in the way they did. If they did, my love making is of a more robust character," he added, and made the 300 people in the court-room smile TRACING THE CHLOROPORM.

Dr. Kuiffin was not present in court to hear Druggist Patterson's next statement. He said that in his drug shop he had a the Kniffin inquest is held. The building stands back about fifty feet from Broad street, the principal street in the city.

"Did Mrs. Kniffin seem angry?" asked a juryman.

"No; she seemed to think it was all right, and so did Miss Purcell. Mrs. Kniffin only asked. 'What are you doing in the parlor? What did you shut the door for?' The doctor and Miss Purcell only laughed," he concluded.

SUSPICIOUS OF DR. SHANNON. Dentist Shannon, Dr. Kniffin's business partner, is now growing pale, hollow-eyed and nervous. He knows that the police suspect him of knowing more of the murder than he has told, and he is

The little Police Justice fairly defied the Coroner's jury. If one of them saked a question and he saw fit not to answer he would scowl and answer impertinently, and so get out of giving a decisive answer. This was noticeably so when Juryman Larrison asked him if Mis Kniffin's life was moured or not. Only two men of the jury were capable of getting decisive answers out of the Justice.

At noontime a clash occurred between the witness and the jury. Justice Mathesian bean refused to give all the evidence he said he had. Disembowalled and One Leg Fails Into the Street.

Darkness Hid the Approaching Train from View.

A sickening catastrophe accurred on the Union Elevated road in Brooklyn early this morning.

Flagman Michael Graham, sixty-eight years old, of 81 Waverly avenue, was crushed to death by a Fifth avenue train at the City Hall station.

Graham's body was frightfully man gled. He was disembowelled. One leg was cut off and fell into the street, while the rest of his body is a shapeless mass of flesh, bones and clothing.

The accident occurred at 5.45 o'clock this morning.

Graham was the flagman stationed in the little signal box just at the curve where the trains turn into Myrtle avenue from Adams street.

Graham was on the train which arrived at the City Hall station at 5. 45 o'clock.

It has been his invariable custom to wait until the train had moved out, then clamber down to the track and cross to his signal-box.

He has been repeatedly warned to go down to the street and ascend the uptown stairs, thence to his box, but has just as frequently disregarded the warnings. This morning, as usual, he waited until the train pulled out, then lowered himself to the track. He was a stout man, weigh-were on duty at the time.

The train was stopped and the engineer and trainmen, armed with lanterns, went back over the track, there to find a shape less mass, which they had some difficulty in recognizing as Graham.

The mangled remains were carried to the First Precinct Station. House, which is under the shadow of the station, and the body, which is under the shadow of the station, and the corner was notified.

Engineer Crane was placed under arrest.

Graham leaves a son and daughter. The son is a letter-carrier in Brooklyn.
